INTRODUCTION

Journey Overview

16 DAYS · 14 STOPS · 2,140 MI

We love the balance of experiences and dining across the Journey.

Grand West follows the great landscapes of the American West in one continuous journey, from the Pacific coast to desert country, canyonlands, mountain passes and finally San Francisco. Los Angeles opens the route with its unmistakable energy before the Journey turns inland through Arizona and Utah, where Sedona, the Grand Canyon, Monument Valley, Antelope Canyon and Zion shape the heart of the experience. From there, the scenery changes again: Las Vegas gives way to the vastness of Death Valley, the cooler elevations of Mammoth Lakes and the granite landscapes of Yosemite. The final stretch reaches San Francisco, completing a route defined as much by the road between places as by the destinations themselves. Grand West is a Journey of scale and contrast — ocean, desert, canyon, mountain and city — designed to reveal the American West as a connected experience rather than a collection of separate stops.
